JOHN PANTELO

ADVERTISING REVIEW

Prescription-only medicine references in Larkmoor Aesthetics' advertising

Clinic	Larkmoor Aesthetics, Larkmoor (fictional)
Reviewed	Website (31 pages), Google Business Profile, Instagram (bio, highlights, last 60 posts)
Captured	14 August 2026
Prepared by	John Pantelopoulos

About this sample

Larkmoor Aesthetics, its website, Google listing and Instagram account are invented, and every quote below was written for this sample. The patterns are the ones I find most often on real UK clinic sites. A paid review has the same layout, with live links and real screenshots.

Scope

This review compares the clinic's advertising with the UK's published guidance on advertising prescription-only medicines (POMs). It is not legal advice, and it does not say the clinic has broken the law. The new wording is a suggestion, and no ranking outcome is promised.

01 Summary

11 items to change across three channels

The consultation process is sound. The problem is the advertising around it: "Botox" appears on the homepage, in Google results, on Instagram and in a time-limited offer. A patient can find the product name without looking for it.

4	4	3
High: change first	Medium: same pass	Review: lower risk

Where the 11 items are by channel

If you only do three things this week

1. End the Instagram and Google offers on toxin treatments. Offers are the clearest breach of the guidance. H2, H4
2. Take "Botox" off the homepage and out of the Google search snippet. These are what a casual browser sees first. H1, H2
3. Rename the /botox-larkmoor/ page and redirect the old address. H3

02 At a glance

Every item, its channel and the fix in one line

#	ISSUE	CHANNEL	FIX
H1	Homepage names Botox, with a price	Website	Promote the consultation instead
H2	Botox price and offer in Google	Google	Delete the offer, rename the service
H3	Page titled "Botox Larkmoor"	Website	Rename and redirect the page
H4	Instagram Botox offer, pinned	Instagram	Archive it, drop the hashtags
M1	Instagram bio names Botox	Instagram	Swap one word
M2	Testimonial names Botox	Website	Choose a different quote
M3	Lip flip page says "relaxes"	Website	Merge into the filler page
M4	Image alt text names Botox	Website	Rewrite 6 alt texts
V1	Filler FAQ compares to Botox	Website	Reword the question
V2	Google Q&A reply gives a price	Google	Replace the reply
V3	Price list in the main menu	Website	Reword and move the link

03 High priority

Change these first

4 ITEMS

H1 The homepage names Botox and offers new-client money off

Website

FIX Promote the consultation, not the product. Keep the 20% offer for non-prescription treatments only.

NOW

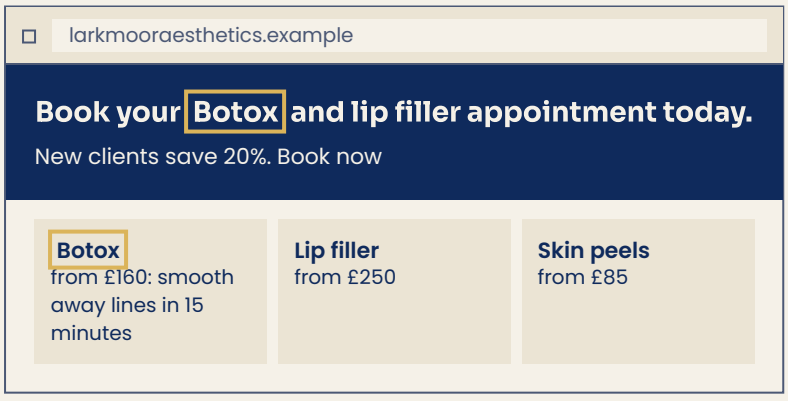

"Book your ~~Botox~~ and lip filler appointment today. New clients save 20%."

"~~Botox~~ from £160: smooth away lines in 15 minutes."

CHANGE TO

"Book a consultation for lip fillers, skin treatments, or lines and wrinkles. New clients save 20% on skin and filler treatments."

Tile: "Lines and wrinkles: talk to our nurse prescriber about the options that suit your face. Consultation £30."

Mock-up of a fictional clinic. Gold boxes mark the flagged wording.

WHERE

Homepage: hero banner and the "Popular treatments" tile

RULES

R2, R3, R7: no named POM on the homepage. The price and "15 minutes" claim make it promotional.

H2

Google shows a Botox price and offer before anyone opens the site

Google

FIX Delete the offer post, rename the service and rewrite the /prices/ search snippet.

NOW

Service: "~~Botox: 1 area~~ £160"

Post: "~~Baby Botox~~ August offer, just £130 this month only"

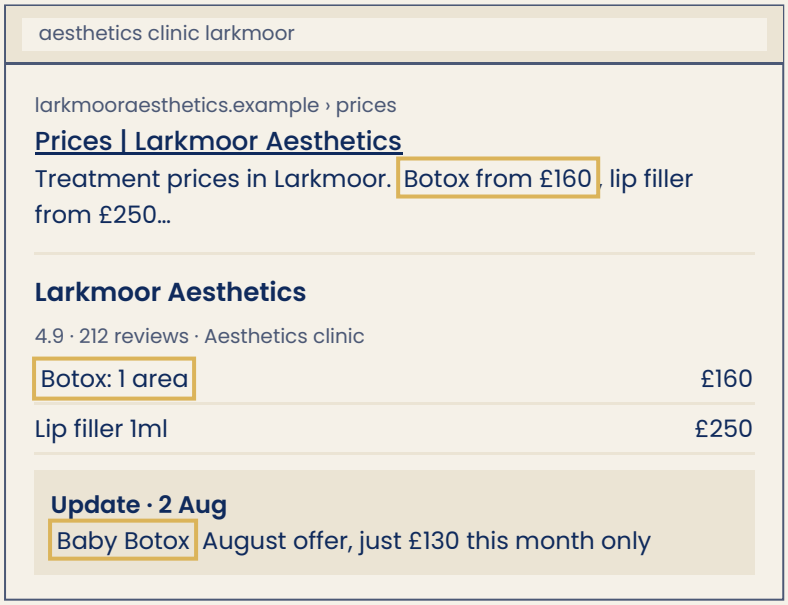

Snippet: "Treatment prices in Larkmoor. ~~Botox from £160~~, lip filler from £250…"

CHANGE TO

Service: "Consultation for lines and wrinkles: £30, redeemable against treatment"

Post: delete. Any replacement promotes the consultation, not a product or price.

Snippet: "Treatment prices in Larkmoor. Lip filler from £250, skin peels from £85, consultations from £30. Nurse prescriber led."

Mock-up of a fictional clinic. Gold boxes mark the flagged wording.

WHERE

Google Business Profile services and a post from 2 August. Meta description of /prices/.

RULES

R1, R5, R7: offers on medicine prices should not be highlighted. A Google listing reaches people who never visit the site.

H3 A treatment page built around the product name

■ Website

FIX Rename the page to a consultation page, move prices to the plain price list and 301-redirect the old address.

NOW

Title: "~~Botox Larkmoor~~ | Best Anti-Wrinkle Injections"

"Why choose us for your ~~Botox~~? We're Larkmoor's most trusted injectors." (19 mentions on the page)

Prices beside "anti-wrinkle injections": £160 / £210 / £250

CHANGE TO

> Title: "Lines and Wrinkles Consultation Larkmoor | Nurse Prescriber"

> "If a prescription treatment is suitable, your prescriber will explain it, including risks and alternatives."

New address /lines-and-wrinkles/ with a 301 redirect, so links and search results still work. Prices move to the price list (V3).

Mock-up of a fictional clinic. Gold boxes mark the flagged wording.

WHERE

/botox-larkmoor/, linked from the main menu

RULES

R4: closest ruling, a "Botox [place]" page. R5: "anti-wrinkle injections" next to a price.

H4 An Instagram offer on a toxin treatment

Instagram

FIX Unpin and archive the post. Remove product-name hashtags from this and older posts.

NOW

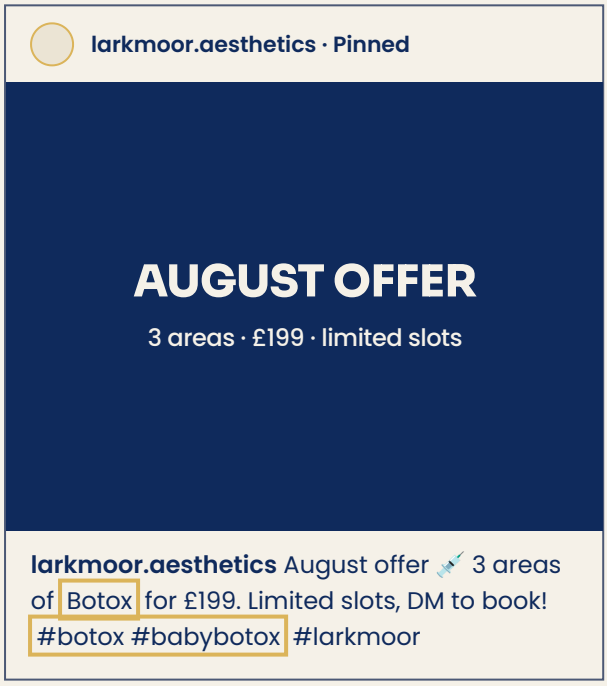

"August offer 💉 3 areas of ~~Botox~~ for £199. Limited slots, DM to book!"

Hashtags: ~~#botox #babybotox~~ #larkmoor #aesthetics

CHANGE TO

"Thinking about lines and wrinkles? Book a consultation with our nurse prescriber to talk through your options. Link in bio."

Hashtags: #larkmoor #aestheticsclinic #skinconsultation

Mock-up of a fictional clinic. Gold boxes mark the flagged wording.

WHERE

Carousel post, 9 August, pinned to the top of the grid

RULES

R1, R7: a highlighted offer on a medicine. The syringe emoji next to a price can imply the POM by itself (R5).

04 Medium

Worth fixing in the same pass

4 ITEMS

M1

Instagram bio names Botox

Instagram Profile bio · R1, R3

NOW

"~~Botox~~ • Fillers • Skin | Larkmoor"

CHANGE TO

"Fillers • Skin • Consultations | Nurse prescriber led | Larkmoor"

M2

A website testimonial names Botox

Website /reviews/ · R3 names testimonials

NOW

"Best ~~Botox~~ I've ever had, so natural!"

CHANGE TO

Don't edit a patient's words. Take this quote off the website and choose one that doesn't name a product. The original can stay on Google.

M3

Lip flip page implies a toxin

Website /lip-flip/ · R5, R6

NOW

"A tiny dose ~~relaxes~~ the muscle so your lip rolls out"

CHANGE TO

"Lip flip" can only mean a toxin, and "relaxes" implies one. Fold the page into the lip filler page and say other options are discussed at consultation.

M4

Image alt text and file names name Botox

Website 6 images · R3 names hover text

NOW

alt="~~Botox before and after~~ forehead"

CHANGE TO

alt="Forehead, before and after treatment". Rename files such as botox-ba-1.jpg.

05 Review

Lower risk, but worth tidying

3 ITEMS

V1

Filler FAQ compares to Botox

Website /dermal-fillers/ FAQ

NOW

"Is filler the same as ~~Botox~~?"

CHANGE TO

"Is filler the same as other injectable treatments? No. Your prescriber will explain the difference at consultation."

V2

A Google Q&A reply gives a Botox price

Google Business Profile Q&A

NOW

Q: "Do you do Botox?" Reply: "~~Yes, from £160~~!"

CHANGE TO

"Yes, we offer consultations for lines and wrinkles with our nurse prescriber. Prices are given at consultation."

V3

Price list is one click from every page

Website /prices/ · R2 allows informational price lists

NOW

Main menu → "Anti-wrinkle, 1 area £160"

CHANGE TO

"Prescription treatment for lines, 1 area £160" with no claims, linked from the consultation page instead of the menu.

06 The rules used

Seven published sources, cited as R1 to R7

REF	SOURCE	WHAT IT SAYS
R1	CAP Code rule 12.12	"Prescription-only medicines or prescription-only medical treatments may not be advertised to the public."
R2	CAP Bitesize: Rules for advertising Botox	Botox may appear on a website as "a potential outcome of the consultation" or "in your price list", "purely informational" and "not on your homepage". "A consumer casually browsing your site should not be able to find any reference to Botox easily."
R3	ASA Advice Online: botulinum toxin products	"No reference to a POM should be made in a sponsored ad, on the homepage of a website, in logos, testimonials or hover text."
R4	ASA ruling: Glowery Ltd, 2023	A page "titled 'Best Botox in London'" that "repeatedly referenced Botox" "promoted Botox to the general public".
R5	ASA Enforcement Notice, 2020	"Anti-wrinkle injections" next to a price for a POM "will be seen as an ad for that POM".
R6	ASA FAQs, 2020	"The word 'relaxing' is likely to be understood as an implied reference to Botox."
R7	MHRA Blue Guide, Appendix 6	The home page "should not include any reference to named POMs". "Special offers on prices of medicines should not be highlighted."

07 What's fine, and what's not covered

Already fine: keep these

- The booking page asks for a consultation before any prescription treatment, and names the prescriber.
- The "Is it safe?" page says botulinum toxin is a prescription-only medicine. That is safety information, not promotion.
- Skin, filler and peel pages make no POM references.

Outside this review

- Paid ads (Google Ads, Meta ads), printed leaflets and in-clinic signs.
- Instagram stories older than 24 hours, and posts older than the last 60.
- Claims about non-POM treatments, such as filler results.

John Pantelopoulos
john@jpaudits.co.uk

Questions about this report are answered by email at no extra cost.
Sample report: clinic and quotes are fictional.